Furthermore, the standard requires that the amount recognized be the same as that which would be determined as a result of a review by tax authorities having all relevant information. During the years ended June 30, 2011 and 2010, management did not identify any uncertain income tax positions. At a minimum, the June 30, 2008 through 2011 tax years are open for examination by taxing authorities."

Part III, lines 4 a, b, and c, Exempt purpose achievements: The League fought hard for inclusive, open and accountable democracy in an increasingly challenging political climate in 2010. The League and our members did tremendous work that helped make health care reform a reality, saw our calls for new measures to increase federal government transparency answered by the Obama Administration, and prepared millions of voters for the 2010 elections.

We brought citizens of all political affiliations and ideologies into our democratic processes and dialogues. In a year in which the political and public discourse often turned ugly, League members organized and moderated debates, public forums, and town hall meetings and set a shining example that we can disagree without being disagreeable, and that raucous democracy can be respectful. The League's carefully considered, fact-based positions on the issues was a powerful counter to heated, divisive rhetoric.

League members helped their fellow citizens take part in the 2010 elections, particularly where barriers to voting posed challenges for eligible voters among elderly, low-income, minority and youth populations. The League's voter engagement and voter protection activities received extensive media coverage, helping bring our messages and services to a nationwide audience.

The League takes a thoughtful, fact-based approach to determining our positions on issues. We also have a variety of mechanisms for sharing those positions with government officials. League staff work with congressional and executive branch members, as well as multiple coalition partners, to make sure our point of view is heard. These efforts are supplemented by our national Lobby Corps, which consists of metro D.C. League members who make strategic visits to Members of Congress on targeted issues. In addition, our Grassroots Lobby Corps—our email alert network—generates action on key legislative issues by mobilizing members across the country to call and write their Senators and Representatives. At the same time, the national League President and other League leaders meet with editorial boards to share League positions and write op-eds and letters to the editor.

In 2010, the League's work promoting national health care reform culminated in passage of the Affordable Care Act—an historic step forward toward guaranteeing affordable health care coverage for all. The law extends coverage to tens of millions of uninsured Americans, expands Medicaid coverage for the poor, and prevents insurance companies from denying coverage to people with pre-existing conditions or dropping coverage due to illness.

Recognizing that global climate change is one of the greatest threats to our nation's health, security and prosperity, the League is a forceful advocate for policies that will reduce air pollution, lessen our nation's dependence on oil, and protect pristine places from oil drilling and mining. Throughout the year, the League pressed Congress to enact comprehensive climate and energy legislation that, by including an enforceable, economy-wide limit on carbon pollution, would reinvigorate our economy and create millions of new private sector jobs. We also urged Congress to fully fund President Obama's budget request for international climate adaptation and preparedness to help the poorest, most vulnerable communities confront this crisis.

The League, with a grant from Oxfam America, also undertook a program of public advocacy activities in Washington, D.C., and six targeted states. Working with the national League, local Leagues hosted public screenings of Oxfam's video, "Sisters of the Planet," recruited high-profile "Sister Ambassadors" to advocate for climate action, ran print ads, and wrote and disseminated op-ed pieces.

The League pursued other opportunities to begin the transition toward America's clean energy future. In the absence of congressional leadership, action by the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) is especially important. In 2010, the League defeated two proposals in the House of Representatives and temporarily staved off a similar Senate resolution that would have stripped the EPA of its authority to regulate global warming pollution under the Clean Air Act. This battle will be ongoing in 2011.

Lobbyists, special interests and campaign contributors have wielded disproportionate influence over all levels of our government in recent years. This imbalance was further exacerbated in January 2010 when the U.S. Supreme Court's ruling in Citizens United v. FEC threw out electoral protections that have served our democracy for decades.

The League undertook a number of critical actions to mitigate the impact of Citizens United and protect our democratic institutions. Then-president Wilson testified before Congress about the urgent need to update campaign finance laws, especially disclosure requirements governing corporate and union spending. The League also advocated forcefully for the DISCLOSE Act, which would have required heightened disclosures of election expenditures and banned election spending by foreign corporations. The bill passed the House of Representatives in June, before partisanship in the Senate prevented it from reaching the floor for a vote.

With safeguards against corruption more important than ever, the League strongly opposed a resolution that would have crippled the Office of Congressional Ethics (OCE), which has brought transparency and credibility to the House ethics process since it was created after the Jack Abramoff scandals in the 109th Congress. The resolution would have returned the House to an era when potential ethics violations disappeared without explanation or public accountability. The League's advocacy generated nationwide news coverage. Following the 2010 election, we called on the incoming House leadership not only to retain the OCE, but to strengthen it by ensuring the office has access to subpoena power.

After years of championing full voting rights for residents of the District of Columbia, the League had no choice but to oppose the District of Columbia Voting Rights Act of 2010 because it was compromised by amendments that would have overturned the gun safety laws that protect D.C. residents. The League's work on this issue received extensive media coverage, including in national publications such as The Washington Post and Politico. We continue to call for passage of the Act without amendments because the people of D.C. deserve to have their voice heard in Congress.

Part III, lines 4 a, b, and c, Exempt purpose achievements, continued: The League activated our Grassroots Lobby Corps and sent letters to members of the Senate urging ratification of the New START Treaty, which was signed by President Obama and Russian President Medvedev in April 2010. The League has long supported measures to reduce the risk of war and promote global stability, including arms control provisions. The New START Treaty will decrease the number of deployed nuclear weapons in both the United States and Russia, and encourage other nations to follow suit. With unanimous support from the nation's military and intelligence leadership, the Senate ratified the treaty in early 2011.

In 2010, the League joined with other leading groups in the release of a "report card" grading the Obama Administration's achievements in government transparency, ethics and lobbying. reforming the system transparency, ethics and lobbying. The report, which was featured on CNN, gave the Administration high marks in these areas, while also outlining key steps it still needed to take. The League and our partners urged President Obama to clean up the corrupting effects of campaign money, including fundamentally reforming the Federal Election Commission (FEC).

In March, the League celebrated Sunshine Week 2010, a national period dedicated to promoting transparency, freedom of information and enhanced public participation in government. As part of our advocacy and education efforts, we cosponsored the 5th Annual Sunshine Week National Dialogue, "Building Transparency," an interactive discussion of federal openness policies and opportunities for citizens to obtain and use government information. The event, which was available to the public via webcast, focused on open government initiatives under the Obama administration.

Part III, line d, Other program services: The national League also began redesigning our website, www.lwv.org, to better incorporate the voices of League members and activists across the country and to develop a more engaging online presence for the next generation of League members and supporters. The new site is scheduled to launch in Fall 2011. Our Facebook page has already proved to be very successful and we are now on Twitter (@lwv).

The League's articles of incorporation, bylaws and other governing documents are available to the public through the League's website, www.lwv.org.
