

Missouri voters now required to show government ID

What the water library which is one of hundreds of polling locations in the state, the new law affects about 6% of registered voters. These are the people whose ID has expired or who don't have a state government issued ID at all. This change happens mid election year, voters who had no issues in August may find themselves turned away in November. The only acceptable identification to vote is a state ID driver's license passport or US ID and the August primary people could vote with a student ID, a voter registration card or an expired ID now everyone has to go through the DMV, which could be especially difficult for seniors, students or workers who have more than one job. a functioning democracy only works if everybody is allowed to have a voice. Several organizations are suing to block the law or reverse it they filed last week. And did not yet have a court date. The last day to register to vote is October 12.
